Dean's Dip Voluntary Recall

Recall Reason: Ventura Foods, LLC is voluntarily recalling seven of its Dean's® Dip products, with specific production dates, because a flavor enhancer may be contaminated with salmonella. The flavor enhancer is made by an ingredient supplier, Basic Food Flavors, Inc., in Las Vegas. The voluntary recall involves a flavor enhancer called hydrolyzed vegetable protein (HVP), which is used to make Dean's Creamy Taco Dip. The other six Dean's Dip products were manufactured on the same equipment, at about the same time, so they're being recalled as well. There is no evidence of salmonella in any Dean's Dip product or in any other Ventura Foods products.

Pack/Codes: The Dean's Dip recall impacts only the products listed below with the specific UPC code and "Sell By" dates. This recall does not affect any other Dean's Dip products or other Ventura Foods Brands.
